Capital City

Mixed-Use · Moscow, Russia

The Capital City complex comprises two mixed-use buildings: the Moscow Tower and the St. Petersburg Tower.

About the Project

With interiors designed by losa Ghini Associati and boasting not only a combined total of 141 stories of retail, office and residential spaces, the development also includes an impressive 2,200 parking spaces in Moscow City. With floor-to-ceiling windows offering panoramic views across the sprawling city, the Moscow Tower residences span floors 18 to 72, while the St. Petersburg Tower residences are located on floors 18 to 61. Apartment layouts feature open-plan living, kitchen and dining spaces, as well as spacious lobbies, comfortable en suite bedrooms, walk-in wardrobes and office space. The two buildings connect on the first 19 floors, with office, retail and spaces throughout. The retail floors occupy an extensive, naturally lit atrium on the lower three floors.

Legend of Tsvetnoy

Mixed-Use Moscow, Russia

Vladislav's personality is reflected in this duality; he expressed himself through highly celebratory working places using brave shapes, dynamics and technological elements. On the other hand, in the residential areas he softened the shades warmed by rich materials and decorative textures combined in a contemporary way. — Iosa Ghini, Interior Designer of the project

About the Project

Walking distance from the Kremlin, the Legend of Tsvetnoy multifunctional complex is an exclusive architectural project of American firm NBBJ. Spacious residential apartments, designed for city professionals, float above the city—with walk-through living and kitchen areas, offering residents breathtaking panoramic views of Moscow's historical center and most prominent landmarks. The luxurious lobbies, designed by Massimo Iosa Ghini, are notable for their homely atmosphere and use of high-end finishing materials, with snow-white leather and wood paneling, backlit glass walls and unique hardwood floors. The complex faces the park opposite Tsvetnoy Boulevard and houses street-level boutiques, banks, cafés and exclusive restaurants, including the newly opened Buddha-Bar Moscow.

Mon Cher

Residential · Moscow, Russia

A luxurious mansion in the early modern style, Mon Cher is one of the most sophisticated buildings in the center of Moscow.

About the Project

Located next to Yakimanka Square, just a five-minute walk from the Kremlin, and comprising 26 one- and two-level boutique residential key-ready suites, Mon Cher offers a sense of French chic and exclusivity right in the heart of the city.

The lobby and glass-roofed atrium with panoramic elevators, as well as the interiors of the suites themselves, are the work of acclaimed French designer Jacques Grange. Grange's elegant neoclassical style uses soft tones and antique elements to create the warmth and charm of a family home—with color accents provided by furniture pieces from renowned designers such as Dame Zaha Hadid, Mattia Bonetti, Patrice Dangel and Vincent Corbiere.

OKO Tower

Mixed-Use · Moscow, Russia

OKO Tower is part of the thriving Moscow City mixed-use district—centrally located within the sprawling Russian metropolis—the design of which was loosely based on London's Canary Wharf and Paris's La Défense.

About the Project

An 85-story skyscraper and a 49-story office tower soar from a 7-story transparent crystalline base, gradually tapering away from each other as they rise. Designed by US based architectural and engineering firm Skidmore, Owings & Merrill—renowned for its iconic towers, including Burj Khalifa, the world's tallest building—the OKO Tower complex laid the groundwork for a new era in contemporary Russian development. At 1,150 feet high, and with a total area of 4,300,000 square feet, the OKO Tower is not only the largest skyscraper in Moscow, but also the highest residential tower in Europe. The complex also has the biggest parking area in Moscow, with 15 levels for 3,500 parking spaces.

Residential and office lobbies have elegant interiors by Italy-based designer Massimo Iosa Ghini. With leading engineering solutions and security systems, 24/7 services, restaurants and bars, a private cinema hall, a luxurious spa and fitness center, and a private landscaped park, OKO Tower offers the ultimate in comfort and activity. The key-ready residential apartments boast designer interiors and stunning panoramic views of the Moskva River, the Vorobyovy Gory (Sparrow Hills) park, the Kremlin and the skyscrapers of Moscow City.
